

TWENTY WORDS ABOUT SHARKS

No claws or paws,
Just jaws,
Full of gleaming, razor teeth
With which to drag you underneath.
Glug, glug, glug.

TEN USES FOR A BANANA

Use it as a boomerang. Throw it.
Take it to school, impress your friends. Show it.
Trail it behind you on a piece of string. Tow it.
Bury it in some soil. Grow it.
Make a banana your pal. Know it.

Always say hello to your banana. Greet it.
Rub its skin to warm it up. Heat it.
Take it to a restaurant. Treat it.
Hold its chair while it sits down. Seat it.
Peel it and gobble it up. Eat it!

WAR GAMES

Rachel wouldn't tell Laura,
So Laura wouldn't tell me.
So I didn't know what to tell Rachel,
In fact I felt all at sea.

Rachel wanted to know what I knew.
What I knew was not much at all.
But she thought I knew more than I did know,
So she stormed off and sat by the wall.

So Laura went over to Rachel,
And then came over to me.
She said, "Rachel knows that you know,
So don't tell or there's trouble, do you see?"

Oh life would be far more fun
If friendships weren't such a muddle.
I don't like all this confusion,
I'd much rather just have a cuddle.
They're sharing secrets over by the wall
And probably calling me names.
Dear God, I just can't stand
These "I hate you!" "I love you!" war games!

GIANT SPIDER

There's a giant spider
On the paper towel container.
It's just sitting and watching and waiting
For poor little Kirsty to dry her hands.
Then:
Leap, crunch, munch, burp.
It'll be all over in less than a minute.
When her mum comes to pick her up
At the end of the day,
There'll be just a coat with no Kirsty in it!

ART

Paint on the walls
Paint on the door
Paint on the taps
Paint on the floor

Paint on my fingers
Paint in my hair
Paint on my jumper

Painting disaster.
Too much of a rush.
I only really wanted
A little paint on my brush!
